

WE ARE HIRING!

Medical Application Specialist- (m/f/d)

Make a positive impact in the global healthcare community with cutting-edge medical mixed reality technology.

apoQlar is the developer of a medical mixed reality platform that is revolutionizing how medicine is practiced, experienced, learned, and shared. VSI HoloMedicine® is a medically certified software platform that leverages the Microsoft HoloLens hardware to transform medical images, clinical workflows, and medical education into an interactive 3D mixed reality environment.

We are currently looking for an enthusiastic and motivated individual to join our team as a Full-Time Medical Application Specialist (m/f/d). You will work hand in hand with the Customer Operations team to build and maintain a product roadmap for a medical application as well as provide customer support.

Responsibilities:

- Create the product roadmap for one medical application and cooperate with internal and external stakeholders to ensure the design, development, and delivery of the new features
- Ensure, together with the Customer Operations Team, that the priorities defined for the roadmap are aligned with the global product strategy
- Ensure that customer feedback is gathered according to the strategy defined
- Define and document usability requirements
- Work in cooperation with the Technical Product Owners to ensure that the technical requirements are clearly defined
- Constant tracking of competitors and research projects
- Ensure, together with the Regulatory Affairs Team, adherence to Regulatory requirements and Quality Standards
- Coordinate with the Marketing and Sales team to ensure that marketing and sales strategies are aligned with the development cycle of the product
- Deliver product demos and manage sales processes during the whole sales cycle
- Manage product support inquiries from our customers
- Maintain and expand our Customer Relationship Management (CRM) processes to ensure data integrity and oversight of the customer base

Your Profile:

- At least one year of experience in a marketing/product management position with medical software
- Ability to translate customers' needs into actionable product strategy
- Ability to work on multiple projects and prioritize accordingly
- Excellent communication skills
- High degree of emotional intelligence with a customer-oriented mindset
- Fluency in English is required, German is a plus

Why Us?

- Opportunity to positively impact the lives of patients, students, and surgeons around the world
- Chance to not just shape but also create an entirely new market in healthcare using medical mixed reality
- Work alongside a multicultural and international team – over 10 countries represented in our office
- A flat hierarchy with direct access to the founding team

- High degree of ownership with the opportunity to drive projects forward on your own or with a team
- Gain international finance and accounting experience across multiple continents
- Have an immediate impact on business direction

Are you interested in helping us shape an entirely new market in healthcare and advancing next generation medical technology? Then we look forward to hearing from you!

Contact:

careers@apoqlar.com

c/o the-lab.space

apoqlar GmbH

Raboisen 32

20095 Hamburg